CryoVation to host GAWDA Regional Meeting in Southwest Florida

FORT MYERS, Fla. (Jan. 24, 2011) – Nationally recognized speakers, a unique golf clinic and an afternoon on the links are planned for the annual Southeastern zone regional meeting for the Gases and Welding Distributors Association (GAWDA), hosted by CryoVation www.cryovation.com March 1 at Raptor Bay Golf Club in Fort Myers, FL.

A first-hand look at industry movers and shakers and technology advances will be presented by CryoGas International publisher John R. “Buzz” Campbell. Then “The Sales Hunter,” nationally known speaker/motivator Mark Hunter, will discuss “Selling in 2011: What it Will Take to Grow Sales Profitably.” Bryan Keen, president of Keen Compressed Air, will open the program with a GAWDA update. The all-day event also will include golf games, an 18-hole golf tournament and an after-golf social and networking event. A special guest, pro golfer and Powerchute www.powerchutesports.com inventor Jim Sowerwine, will conduct a swing clinic prior to golfing.

GAWDA members and non-members are invited. The cost is $250 for the full event, including golf, or $65 for a half day. The day before, on Monday Feb. 28, GAWDA will sponsor an AWS Certified Welding Sales Representative training course, and CryoVation will host its annual barbecue. Both special events are offered at no cost to attendees. All events can be registered for online at <http://bit.ly/hqichl>. Registration deadline is Feb. 18.
